

THE SCIENCE OF TWITTER ADS

by AdEspresso
by Hootsuite

A Successful Twitter Ad

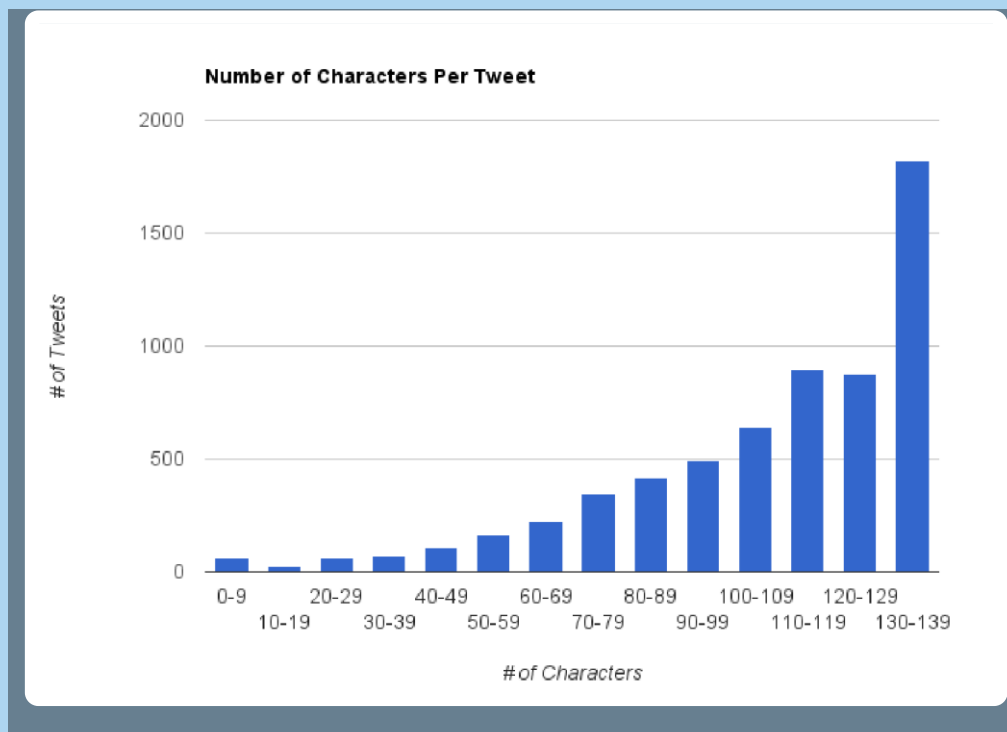

A great Twitter Ad is a combination of great text, images, and targeting.

In this eBook we have used data from 7,712 Twitter Ads from the AdEspresso Twitter Ad Gallery to look at how the first 2 of these, text and images, impact the success of a Twitter Ad.

By analyzing these components we can show you what goes into making a great Twitter Ad that will be read, clicked, liked, and retweeted 1000s of times.

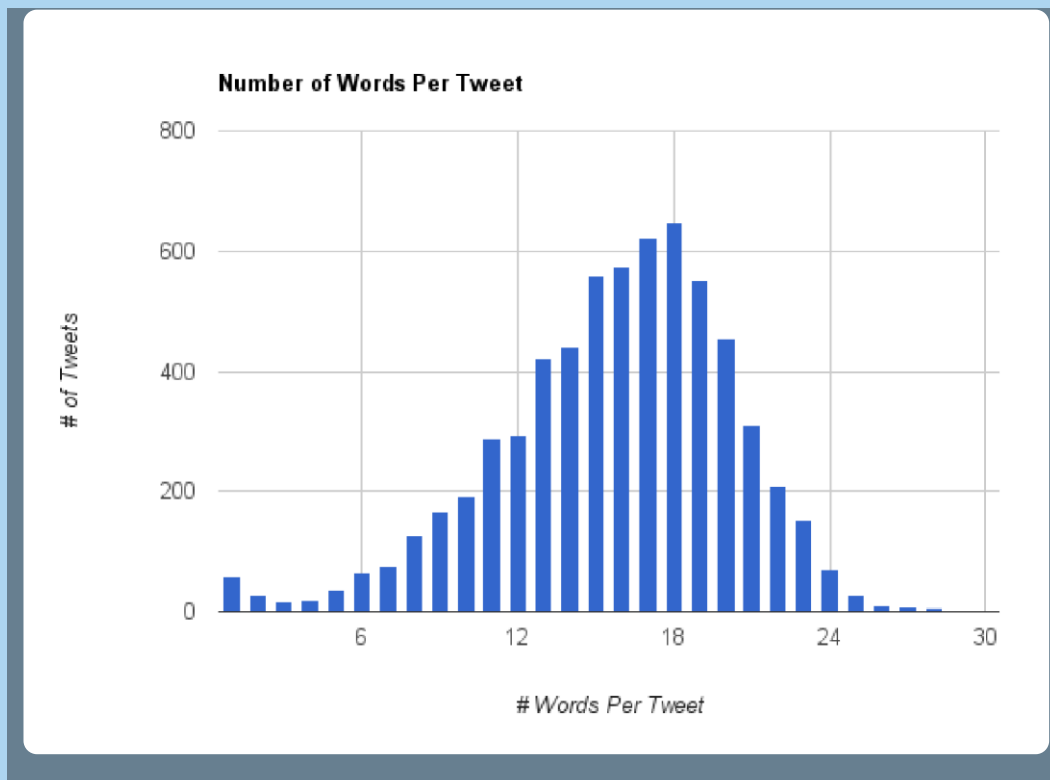

The Text in Twitter Ads - Character length

- Twitter has a hard 140-character limit for all tweets.
- This highly limits what the ad can say within the tweet text.
- 30% of Twitter ads came close to this limit, trying to pack as much information as possible into the text.
- Only 5% were less than 50 characters.
- 65% chose to keep the text short than needed, linking through to the site for more information.

The Text in Twitter Ads - Word count

- Because of the character limit, most twitter ads use short words.
- Most common number of words in a tweet is 18.
- This corresponds to just 7 characters per word.
- Using short, concise words allows for more information within the tweet.

The Text in Twitter Ads - Data

- Twitter ads with more characters got more likes and retweets.
- The optimal length of a twitter ad for retweets and likes was between 130-139 characters long.
- This length allows for a good message, but doesn't entirely pack the tweet.
- Tailor your twitter ad to fit comfortably within the 140 character limit.

The Text in Twitter Ads - Examples

Too Short

Too Long

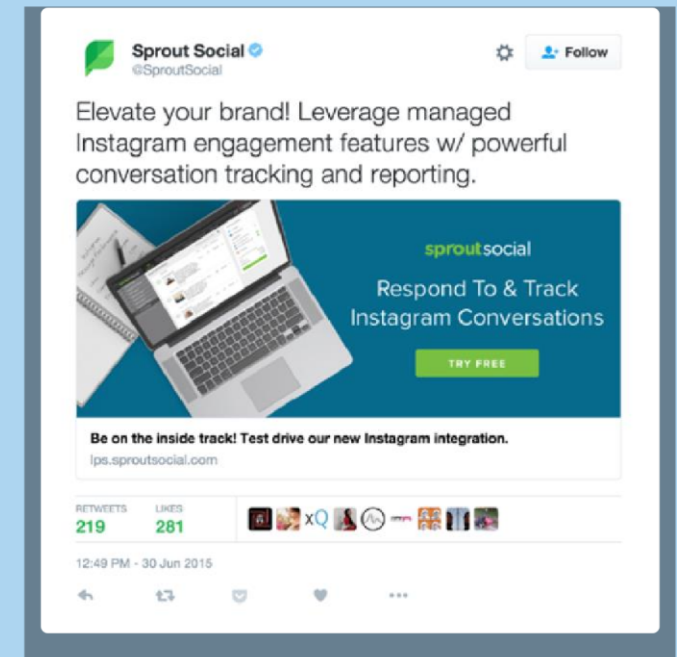

Ideal

A short tweet can look sparse and without any real message.

A long tweet can pack too much information into a small space &

An ideal tweet gets the right message across succinctly.

end up confusing the audience.

Popular Words in Twitter Ads - The Top 5

- Words considered are the most popular words in twitter ads:
 - You/Your: These words invoke the power of the self and makes the reader automatically think how the product will relate to them.
 - Free: Free captures attention as it shows the product offers value at zero cost to the reader.
 - Now: The immediacy of “now” induces our
 - “fear of missing out” (FOMO) if we don’t act immediately.
 - New: Novelty is an automatic trigger for the brain’s reward center.

Popular Words in Twitter Ads - Examples

SweetSpot
@sweetspot

How do you measure performance? Discover tips and tricks in our free guide!

Learn to transform complex metrics into insights!

DOWNLOAD DATA VISUALIZATION FOR DIGITAL PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT

sweetSpot
INTELLIGENCE

Download Now

Share your name and email address with SweetSpot

Papermine
@goPapermine

Papermine is a brand-new web app to create stunning digital booklets. It's quick, easy and free.

Say hello to a new way to publish.
papermine.com

RETWEETS
36

LIKES
81

8:19 AM - 29 Jun 2015

The use of “you” makes the reader ask themselves Using “new” and “free” together shows that this the question, and “free” sets up the answer as product is both novel and zero cost, enticing the zero cost for them. reader and reducing the friction needed to sign up.

Sentiment in Twitter Ads - Popular sentiment

- Most Twitter ads are positive in emotion.
- Sentiment analysis gauges the emotional valence of texts.
- Words are rated on a scale of -5 to +5, with low numbers equalling negative words (“Catastrophic”), and high numbers equalling positive sentiment (“Superb”).
- It is commonly used to study the positivity and negativity of general tweets.

Sentiment in Twitter Ads - Examples

 Mark Daoust
@markdaoust

5 Common Mistakes That Destroy Your Website's Value. Are You Making These Mistakes?

5 Worst Mistakes Website Owners Make

Get The Full Report

Share your name and email address with Mark Daoust

Sentiment annotations: -2 (pointing to 'Mistakes'), -3 (pointing to 'Destroy'), -2 (pointing to 'Mistakes?')

 Hillary Clinton
@HillaryClinton

We're flying one lucky supporter (and a friend) out to have dinner with Hillary. Enter now for your chance to win!

Win a Dinner with Hillary!
hillaryclinton.com

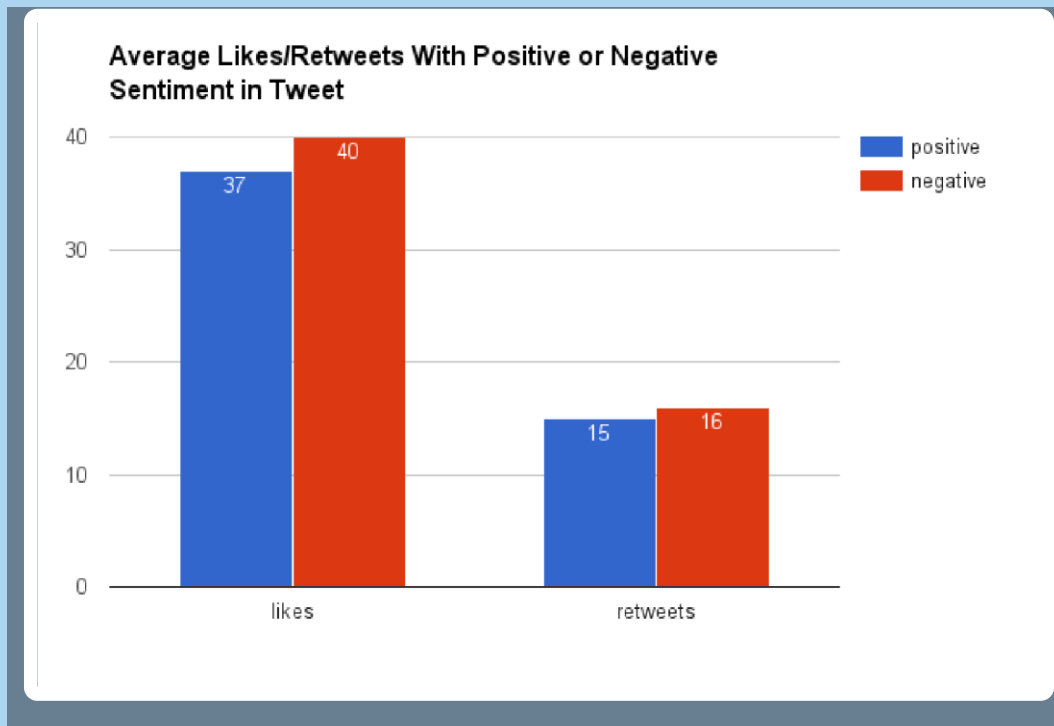

RETWEETS: 228 LIKES: 370

9:52 AM - 18 Aug 2015

Sentiment annotations: +3 (pointing to 'lucky'), +1 (pointing to 'supporter'), +4 (pointing to 'win!')

Negative sentiment can be used to show people what they are missing out on (FOMO) or tap into their fears of being wrong. Positive sentiment works well to drive people to perform a certain action and to identify good feelings with your brand.

Sentiment in Twitter Ads - Data

- Twitter ads with negative sentiment were more 8% more likely to be liked and 6% more likely to be retweeted compared to tweets with positive sentiment.
- This small difference suggests the tone of the message is less important to the audience.
- Use a tone that matches your message and your audience.

Numbers in Twitter Ads - Most popular numbers

- The most common
- number used was 5.

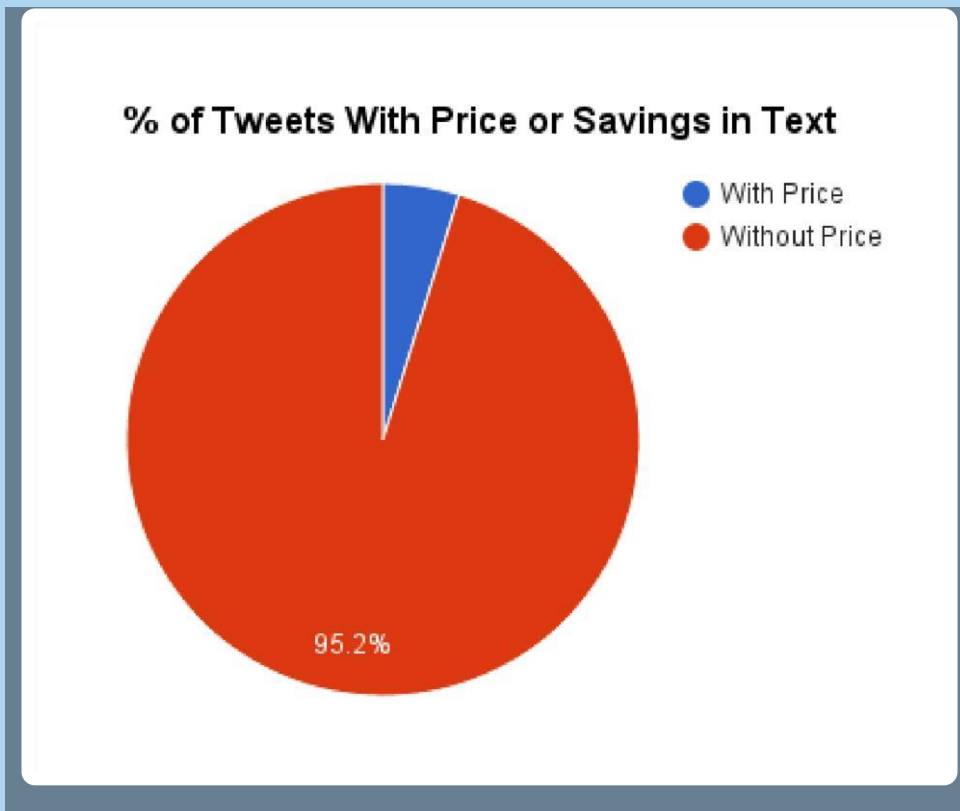

Numbers can be added to the text of a Twitter ad to convey:

- A. pricing information and savings (“$5 off our product!”)
- b. social proof (“20% of developers use our service”)

C. lists (“7 things you didn’t know about Twitter ads”)

They can convey a lot of meaning in few characters so are especially useful for Twitter ads.

Numbers in Twitter Ads - Pricing

- Only ~5% of Twitter ads used price or savings information in the tweet.
- Adding pricing information to the Twitter ad is a quick way to show your audience your value.
- Showing savings also draws attention to your ad and will induce your audience to click through.

Numbers in Twitter Ads - Examples

Indochino
@indochino

LAST CHANCE! Save $100 off your first custom suit with Indochino. Details: bit.ly/1MDFttz

RETWEETS 6 LIKES 36

8:14 PM - 21 Aug 2015

The New Yorker
@NewYorker

Subscribe to The New Yorker and get 12 weeks for just $12. Plus, get a free tote bag.

The New Yorker Magazine
subscribe.newyorker.com

RETWEETS 5 LIKES 17

10:07 AM - 20 Aug 2015

Showing how much your audience can save on your product demonstrates value and makes them more likely to click through.

Using the same numbers in a variety of ways (“12 weeks”, $12) draws attention to the text and establishes value to your audience.

Numbers in Twitter Ads - Data

Average Likes/Retweets With or Without Price in Tweet

- Twitter ads with pricing information were 36% less likely to be retweeted and 29% less likely to be liked.
- Having pricing makes the advertising more explicit, decreasing the likelihood the audience will want to retweet into their own timeline.
- This can still impart useful information to your audience even without retweets and likes.

Hashtags in Twitter Ads

% of Tweets Using Hashtags

- Hashtags are a common way to spread a message on Twitter.
- Only 29.1% of Twitter ads used 1 or more hashtags.
- Of the Twitter ads that used hashtags, 71.6% used just 1 hashtag.
- 70.9% of all Twitter ads were hashtag free.

Hashtags in Twitter Ads - Examples

ADP
@ADP

Follow

Learn About Staying Compliant, Reducing Costs & HR Strategies. ADP – A more human resource. #HelloWork

Say Hello to a More Human Resource

adp.com

RETWEETS

4

LIKES

52

12:36 PM - 16 Nov 2015

HR Cloud
@HRCLOUD

Follow

We're hiring in LA! hrccloud.com/careers/#techjobs #dev #ux #ui #java #javascript
#devjobs #iOSjobs #webdev #uxui

RETWEETS

11

LIKES

45

6:15 PM - 17 Sep 2015

El Segundo, CA

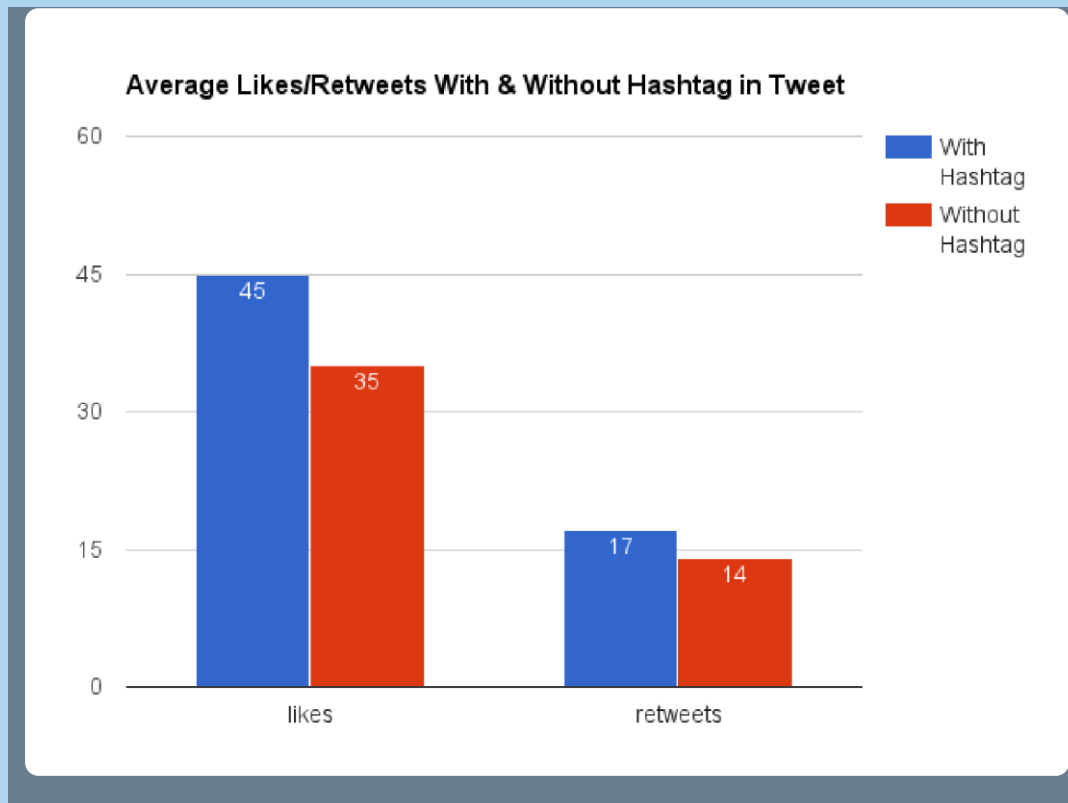

Careers @HRCLOUD

Use a hashtag unique to your campaign to make it easier to track. Use just 1 or 2 hashtags to keep the message clear.

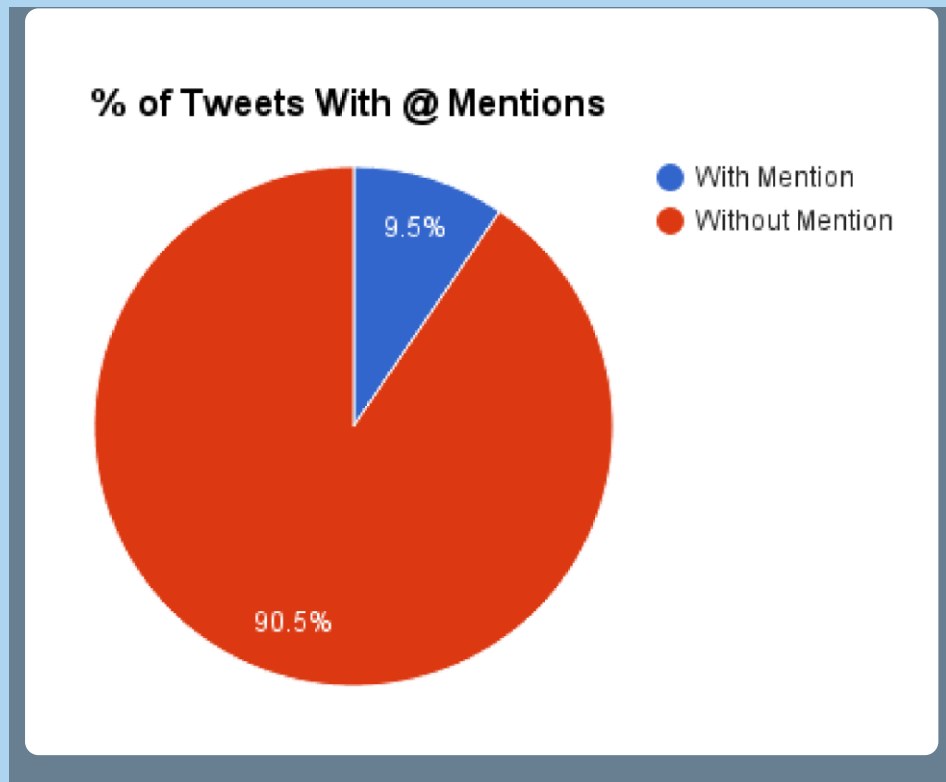

Don't use too many hashtags as it removes space for your message & too many hashtags makes it more difficult to target a specific audience.

Hashtags in Twitter Ads - Data

- Twitter ads with a hashtag were 29% more likely to be liked, and 21% more likely to be retweeted than those without hashtags.
- Twitter ads with hashtags can be found more easily.
- They can target a specific audience who are more likely to retweet and like a tweet that is geared to them.

Mentions in Twitter Ads

- @ mentioning another brand can help to coopt them into spreading your message.
- Only 9.5% of Twitter ads contained an @ mention.
- retweet tweets they are mentioned in; this increases to 65% if it is a direction question.
- This is good for co-marketing campaigns where you are actively working with a partner brand.
-

It is also a good way to show which brands you want to be identified with.

Mentions in Twitter Ads - Examples

Adobe Document Cloud
@AdobeDocCloud

Make over 400 @Workday processes more efficient with eSign services. Learn how at #wdayrising: adobe.ly/1fwsjBE

Trusted e-signatures from Adobe coming to Workday Rising 2015.

RETWEETS
14

LIKES
25

4:29 PM - 21 Aug 2015

Udemy
@udemy

Create the next @uber or @twitter. Enroll in The Complete iOS 9 Course online today on Udemy. #iOS9

The Complete iOS 9 Course: Build 18 Apps - 66% Off Today!
udemy.com

RETWEETS
15

LIKES 35

10:26 PM - 25 Aug 2015

@ mentioning a co-marketing partner in your tweet makes them more likely to see the tweet and reply, retweet, or like & increases your possible audience.

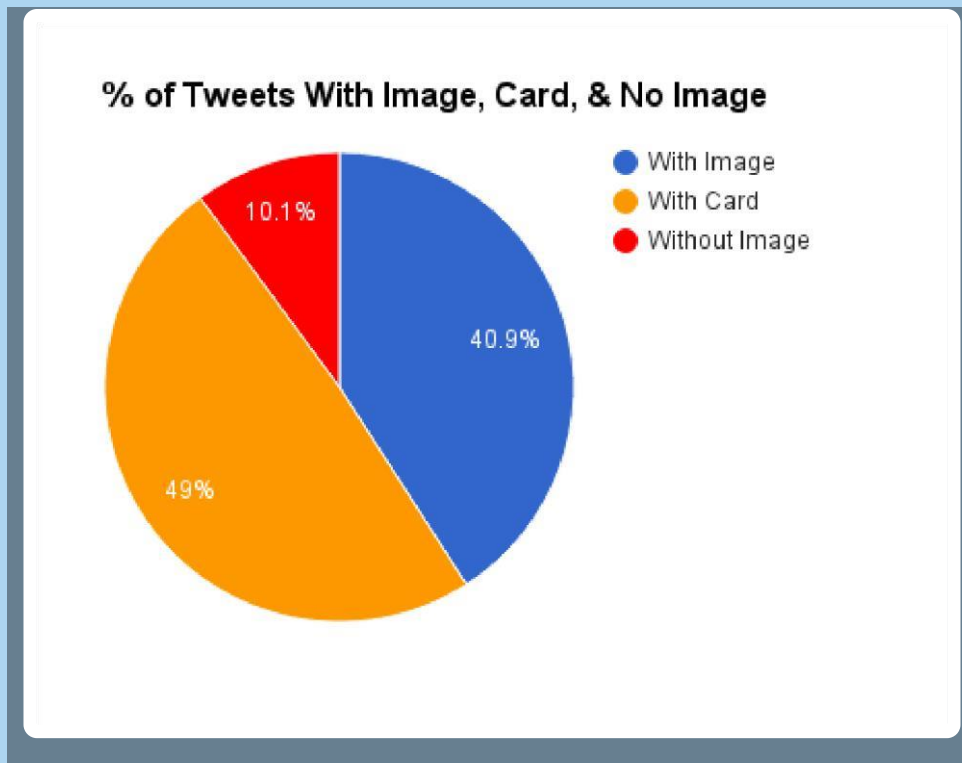

It can also work to draw attention to the brands that you want to identify with, making your message more obvious in the tweet.

Mentions in Twitter Ads - Data

- Tweets with mentions were 13% less likely to be retweeted and 13% less likely to be liked than those without a mention.
- Other people might think that they are also retweeting the mentioned account.
- Your audience might also think the tweet is meant for the other account so won't retweet.

Images in Twitter Ads

- Images are a great way to stand out within a Twitter feed and were used by almost all Twitter ads
- Only 10.1% of Twitter ads were without any image at all.
- 40.9% had an embedded image.
- 49% of Twitter ads used a Twitter Card as the image.

Images in Twitter Ads - Examples

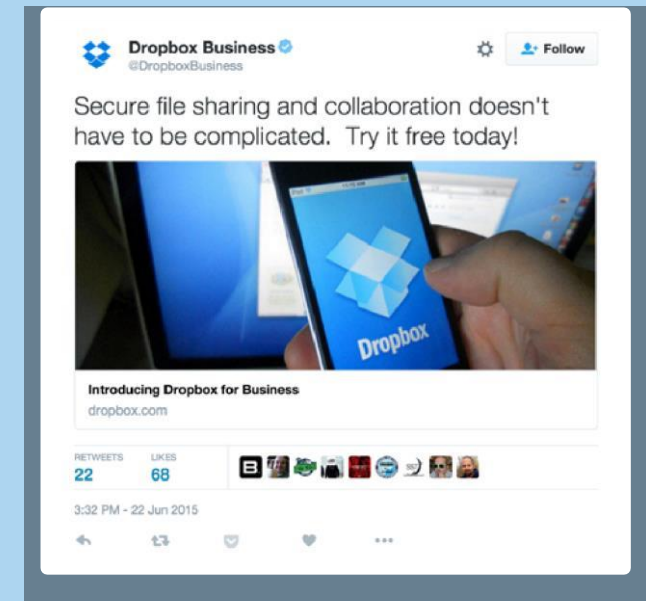

No Image

Image Attached

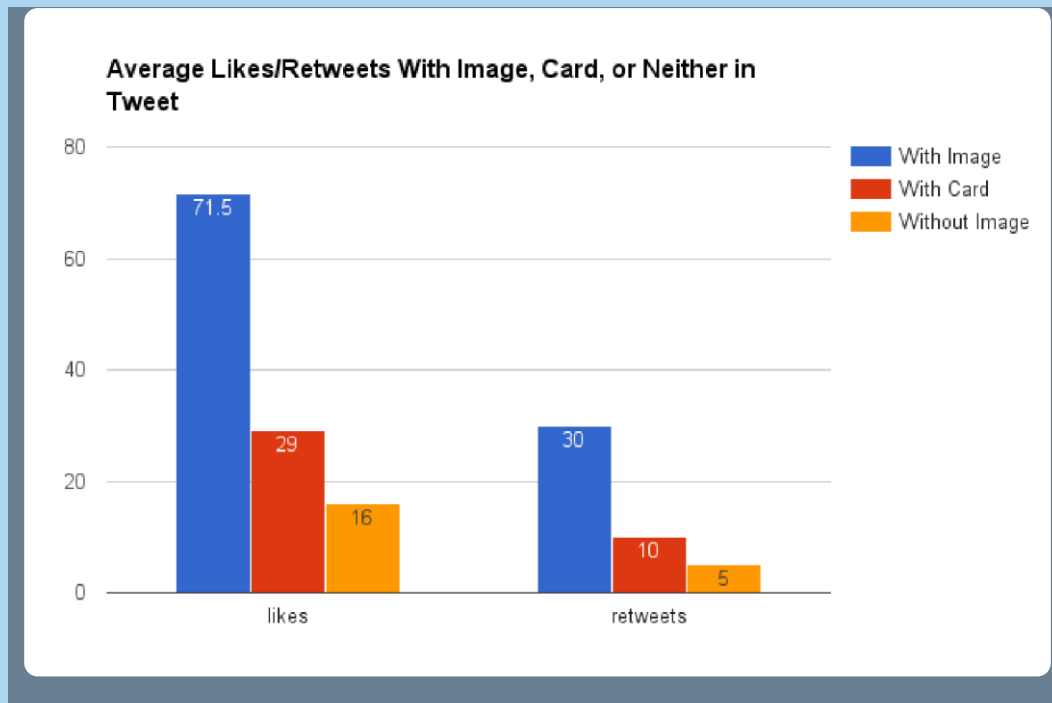

Image in Card

Twitter ads without an image Adding an image makes the Cards allow you to generate leads are good for quick pieces of Twitter ad stand out in your easily through Twitter ads. information for your direct audience timeline. audience.

Images in Twitter Ads - Data

Twitter ads with embedded images were 4.5x more likely to be liked and 6x more likely to be retweeted than ads with no image.

They were also 2.5x more likely to be liked and 3x more likely to be retweeted than ads using cards.

Twitter ads using card images 1.8x more likely to be liked and 2x more likely to be retweeted than ads with no image.

Images make the tweet much more visually appealing, and therefore more likely to be noticed and retweeted/liked.

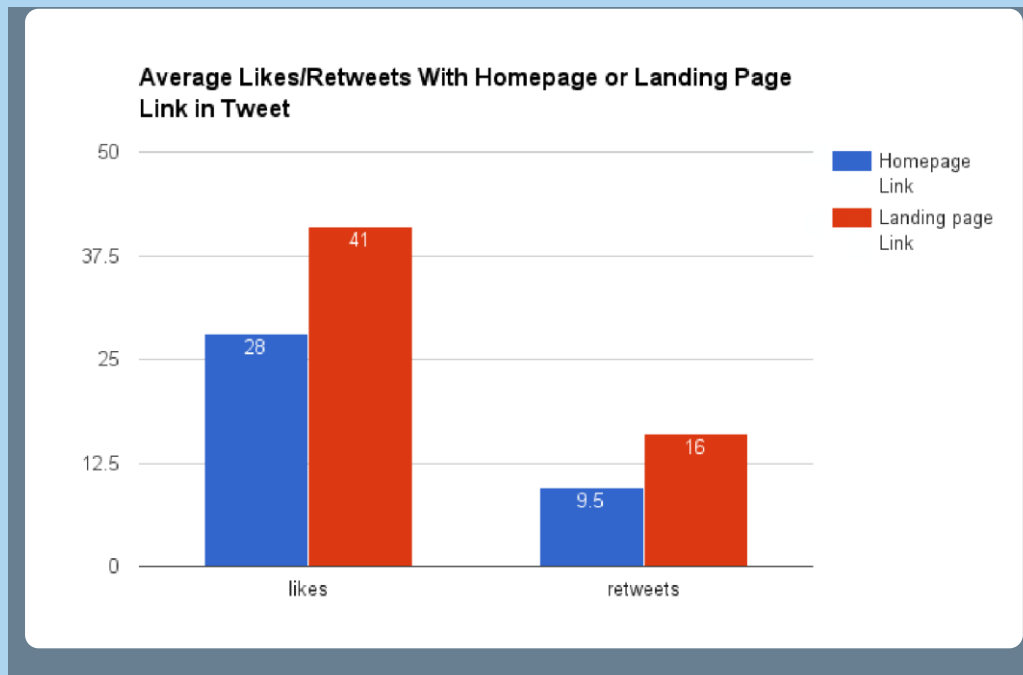

Cards may make readers too aware the tweet is a Twitter ad, and therefore less likely to want to retweet it to their timeline or to like the ad.

Links in Twitter Ads

- All Twitter ads had a link either directly in the text or via the image or card.
- Of these links 22.4% linked to the homepage of the brand advertised, whereas 77.6% linked directly to a landing page specific to the Twitter ad or product.
- Having a specific landing page allows you to capture information about your audience members, such as name, email, and company.

Links in Twitter Ads - Data

- Twitter ads with links to a specific landing page were 46.4% more likely to be liked, and 68.4% more likely to be retweeted by the audience.
- The audience is more likely to form a positive impression from a targeted landing page and therefore more likely to go back and retweet or like the ad.

